

The First Twenty Years: A History of the Growth and Development of the American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown, Ohio, Beginning 1901 and Ending 1922 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The First Twenty Years: A History of the Growth and Development of the American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown, Ohio, Beginning 1901 and Ending 1922 Work - honest labor - is one of the noblest things in life. One who can feel that he is doing his fair share of the work of the world has good reason to be happy. No normal man can, however, be satisfied simply to work. He wants to work to some purpose and to accomplish the largest possible result, both for himself, his associates, and his company. He wants to work effectively. There can be no real effective work without the inspiration of that thing called spirit, which is the mainspring of accomplishment. It is for that reason that we have been so greatly interested in the development of real Armco Spirit. Armco spirit can first be compared with what, at school, is termed college spirit or class spirit as applied to those graduating in any given year. It compares with community spirit, or what might be described as group spirit as representing the combined interest and purpose of any given number of persons working together in a common cause. Spirit is that thing which grips and holds the hearts of men and gives the power of extraordinary accomplishment, when working for a worthy purpose. Armco spirit is a comprehensive, vital force, which finds expression in the practical application of policies builded on a platform of Christian principles, in which selfish purpose has no place.
