

Jeanne and Anna Mysteries: The Mystery of the Open Grave

Jeannie and Anna are sitting under the trees reading when out of nowhere a man comes running full speed through the high flowers and weeds. The girls sink as low as possible to avoid being seen before another two men come running behind hollering, Well get you, Slim Jim! Well get you! The girls alarm is only the beginning as they are soon thrust into a real mystery when a dug-up grave is discovered. Shelton McGraw depicts the chilling excitement as the teenage girls work to uncover the reasons for the strange events that have unfolded. After going out to lunch with the sheriff, the suspense was building for the girls and their families. As the sheriff began to unravel the mystery of the three men and what they were hunting, no one could believe what was going on. When the paper shared that a reward was being offered for the finding of the money that had been stolen several years ago, the whole town was excited, and the girls were hopeful because they were close to solving the mystery. So why was a man dug up? Why was the casket opened? And was there a map to where the money was? A $5,000.00 reward was a really heavy price to pay. Join in the adventure as Jeannie and Anna work to close The Mystery of the Open Grave.
