

State Sanitation, Vol. 2: A Review of the Work of the Massachusetts State Board of Health (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from State Sanitation, Vol. 2: A Review of the Work of the Massachusetts State Board of Health. A Most interesting way of studying history is that of reading original documents, addresses and writings by contemporaries of the events described; and this is just as true in the field of the public health as in that of general history. There are no more important series of scientific writings on subjects pertaining to preventive medicine, hygiene and sanitation than those which have appeared in the annual reports and special reports of the Massachusetts State Board of Health during the period, covering nearly half a century, from 1869 to 1914. Several hundred in number and scattered through sixty or seventy volumes, some of which can be found only with the greatest difficulty, these writings are in danger of being lost to the world, or, at least, of escaping the attention of present day students of public health. The best way to rescue these reports from oblivion seemed to be to index them and in addition to prepare a series of abstracts of leading articles, while the best way to give new life to the most important writings, which might appropriately be called the Massachusetts Classics in Sanitation, seemed to be to reprint them, with such abridgment as might be necessary to bring them within the compass of a single book. Such reprints and abstracts are given in the present volume. It is hoped that these writings which inspired the fathers will also inspire the sons. In making the selections especial prominence has been given to the subjects of water supply and sewage disposal, for it was in the investigation of these subjects that the State Board of Health of Massachusetts acquired early fame.
