

Prayers from the Heart - Forming Lay-Led Inner Healing Groups

Though neither a psychologist nor a pastor, in this book, the author writes from the viewpoint of a lay minister of inner healing. She has had extensive training and experience and approaches the subject from what she calls a gentle charismatic viewpoint. As the reader turns the pages through the chapters from the whos? to whys? to how tos, this book may also serve as a way in which God will search out the readers own heart. As the original editor, Tom Denbo, put it, The Holy Spirit was continually ministering to me as I read . . . often I had to stop because I couldnt see the screen through my tears . . . Those who have suffered greatly in the Lord have a quality of ministry that is like no other. This work has that quality. It has the fragrance of a life work poured out before the Lord.
