

Philosophy Of Life: Stories for Young People

The stories in this book are designed to teach children, through the experience of human and animal characters, how to use their collective insights or wisdom to always do what is right. Children are exposed to various everyday situations and are taught how to respond in a positive manner, even when it means sacrificing their pride in order to accomplish that goal; in some cases, they are presented with some negative consequences when they chose to do wrong. This book of original motivational short stories represents the first in a set of three volumes. Volume one, current one, is designed especially for children aged eight to twelve years old.
