

Polly, Stubby & Al: Funny family pets

A funny and heartwarming story about three family pets. An illustrated childrens book BEN and SARA DONOVAN live in a small community called Wolfe Lake with their two daughters, six year old MEGAN and eight year old KATIE. The family has two pets, Polly, a multi-colored talking parrot and Stubby a tan colored, bowlegged English bulldog. Daddy Ben owns a small landscaping business. Mama Sara is a housewife and animal lover. One day, Mama Sara, Megan, Katie and Stubby are walking in the woods when they see an injured black crow lying on the ground. Mama Sara picks up the crow, takes him home and nurses him back to health. When healed and released back into the wild, the black crow flies back to their home, choosing to remain with the family. They name him Al and he becomes one of their family pets. Over the years the family had become used to Pollys chatter, but a week later theyre amazed when Al speaks. From then on their everyday life took on an abrupt and hilarious change. From that day forward nothing is the same in the Donovan household, as Al becomes a funny and mischievous character. Then one sunny day, while flying in the sky, Al is caught in a sudden storm. The weather becomes ugly. The sky turns black, bolts of lightning are flashing, theres strong winds and heavy rain. Over and over Al desperately calls for help, Mama, Mama. They watch as Al is tossed in the wind and blown toward the nearby dense forest. Getting into daddy Bens pickup, they follow after their wind-blown pet. However, the family is helpless as they look up into the darkened sky and watch Als plight. Does Al survive? Do they ever see their pet crow again? Is that a lesson not to be caught in a storm? This illustrated childrens book from D. B. Silvis, Polly, Stubby & Al is in the vain of the tradition of Anne Vitter Kennedy, Drew Daywalt & Catherine Hapka.
