

Kiki the Cavalier -- Barking Is Hard!

Some things in life, like speech development, are challenging. Progressing at a slower pace than others can be a cause for concern, stress and self-esteem issue in both children and parents. The moral of this little story is that speech, shown here as barking, will develop on an individual basis for each child. Accepting the differences in all people, having fun and enjoying being a child is the most important thing. Children need to know that parents are not disappointed in them, but love them very much, and only want to help them accomplish all their goals.
